Report on Basant Panchami on 29/01/2020

Basant Panchami is known as Saraswati Puja in North India. Goddess Saraswati, the goddess of wisdom, language, music, art, and the force of desire, is worshipped on this day. Yellow clothes are worn by people as a symbolic depiction of mustard flowers. The mustard fields bloom with yellow blossoms at this time of year. Vasant Panchami, also known as Basant Panchami, is a wonderful festival that celebrates our country's traditions. The arrival of spring is marked by yellow-flowered mustard fields across the country, thus many people wear yellow on this day. People go to temples to offer puja and eat prasadam. Many parents mark the occasion by writing and reading their children's first words.

Like every year, festival of Basant Panchami was celebrated with enthusiasm at SSG Pareek PG College, Jaipur on 29 January 2020. However, keeping in mind the current pandemic situation that the whole world is going through, College management and faculty members worshipped Goddess Saraswati, the divine form of wisdom, music and arts and seek blessings of Maa Saraswati. Amidst the recital of heart touching 'Shlokas' played in dedication to Maa Saraswati and celebrated online. College Principal Prof. N M Sharma said all prayed for the betterment of society and getting rid of worldly pains through true wisdom.

Report on Lohri Celebration on 13/01/2020

Lohri is a traditional Punjabi festival celebrated primarily by the Sikh and Hindu communities. It marks the end of winter and the arrival of longer days, symbolizing the harvest season's culmination. The festival is celebrated with great fervor and enthusiasm, especially in the northern regions of India.

Lohri is celebrated on the 13th of January every year, which falls during the winter solstice. It typically begins in the evening and continues into the night, with people gathering around bonfires to celebrate.

The centerpiece of Lohri celebrations is the bonfire. Faculties and students gather around it, sing traditional songs, and perform dances like Bhangra and Gidda.

People dress up in colorful traditional attire, with women wearing bright suits or sarees and men donning kurta-pajamas or traditional Punjabi attire. Lohri is a time for socializing and strengthening community bonds. Friends and family members visit each other's homes to exchange greetings, sweets, and gifts. Lohri marks the culmination of the winter harvest season, and it is celebrated as a way of thanking the gods for a bountiful harvest and seeking their blessings for prosperity in the coming year.
